Creating Deep Connections in a Virtual World; Soul Work

August 20, 2020, Time: 7:00pm

For 35 years I believed I had a food problem. For 20 years I thought I had a work problem and for 19 years I thought I had relationship problems. However, what I have come to realize is that each of these things is not a problem. They were symptoms of a bigger issue. I had a spiritual practice problem. I had succumbed to a life that looked nothing like I thought it would be, and most of it because of my own best thinking. By throwing everything I thought I knew away and gathering up all that I had learned, I began to develop a new way of being. For this class I will share what I have learned from my experience so far and together we will share wisdom and insights we each bring to our spiritual practice.

Amy Paquette, Presenter: Amy is the proud mother of Adina Paquette and wife to Dan Paquette (fun TBO guy!). When Amy isn't finding funding for the Starlight Children's Foundation, she is at home thinking about how to revolutionize some of the world's most significant issues. Then she gets tired and streams Netflix. However, Amy looks forward to sharing her latest experience - finding the answers to life's questions by developing a regular spiritual practice.

How Do We Move Forward in All This Brokenness?

August 25, 2020, Time: 7:00pm

How much am I responsible for? How far does my reach extend? When can I say enough? It all sounds great, but what are the limits?

Rabbi David Fine, Presenter: While he rarely gets to use the title, David Fine is rabbi emeritus of Temple Beth Or, having served from 1993-1998 as our congregation's first rabbi. He joined the staff of the Union for Reform Judaism in 1996, working with smaller congregations, their rabbis, lay leaders, and boards. He also advises congregations on mergers and collaborative ventures, using design thinking and appreciative ways of creating a stronger future. Rabbi Fine was part of the core team that brought URJ Camp Kalsman to fruition and has been an active member of the Camp Commission and faculty since its inception. He relishes every opportunity to teach, to learn, and find meaning in relationship with others.

Questioning Our Troublesome Texts

August 30, 2020, Time: 7:00pm

Together we will examine Genesis and the misogynistic views in the text. We will look at these sections with a historical perspective and through a contemporary lens. The session will include large and small group conversations.

Sonia Siegel Vexler, Presenter: Sonia is a founding member of Temple Beth Or and has served on the Board in a variety of capacities. She currently serves as the chair of the Nominations Committee, the Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Task Force and our Leadership Development Program. Sonia has also served on the North American Board for the Union for Reform Judaism.

Shofar Blowing; Hitting the Notes

September 10, 2020, Time: 7:00pm

Learn how to blow the notes for both the Rosh HaShanah and Yom Kippur Services

Al Friedman, Presenter: Al is a founding member of Temple Beth Or and has been involved in liturgical music for the past 20 years. He is a regular shofar blower each year and has taught several shofar making and blowing classes. Al is currently a faculty member at Everett Community College.

A High Holy Days Apple Crisp...Or is it a Cobbler?

September 16, 2020, Time: 7:00pm

A Rosh HaShanah baking experiencing for (almost) all ages. An opportunity to make something sweet to bring in the new year. Exact measurements not required. This will be a bake-along.

Miriam Wnuk, Presenter: Miriam Wnuk is the 2020 Hebrew School Coordinator at Temple Beth Or and this will be her 14th year involved in the TBO Youth Education program. She has taught everything from 3rd grade to high school students and her cooking lessons are always well received by the students, staff, and parents. In her day job, she is the Interlibrary Loan Librarian at City U of Seattle and the Chairperson for the Northwest Interlibrary Loan Conference. She joined TBO in 1980-something as a toddler and has never left.

Yom Kippur Afternoon Text Study

September 28, 2020, Time TBD

Subject to Divine intervention

Heidi Piel, Presenter: Heidi has been a long time board member, temple president, service leader, teacher, and b'nei mitzvah tutor. For the past five years Heidi has provided a Yom Kippur afternoon Text Study inviting people to help her explore texts from a new perspective, finding new wisdom and wonder, and applying these discoveries to our modern lives.
